Support Children's Literacy and Development

My favorite words to hear these days are when my little girl says "Daddy, will you read me a story?"

The question usually comes at bedtime. I always stop whatever I am doing and ask her to select the book that she would like me to read for the evening. It is such a special time and I know that it will help prepare her for a lifetime of reading enjoyment. The love of reading will also help her gain the knowledge she will need when she goes off in the world on her own.

Not all of us have the opportunity to read to a four-year-old every evening, but we all have a chance to help our youth to read.

Our First Lady, Laura Bush is promoting a program called "Reach Out and Read". It is a program that is in health clinics across America where doctors and nurses actually prescribe that parents read to their children.

Our local public and private schools have programs where volunteers can assist students in the classrooms in need of improving their reading skills. Broward County Public Schools has a program in place called Volunteers Assisting Students and Teachers (VAST). VAST trains and facilitates volunteers with the tools necessary to assist students in a variety of subjects. It serves as an excellent opportunity for volunteers to help students develop their literacy skills. To become a volunteer in any one of our public schools, please contact Ann French (954) 765-6525.

If you are unable to volunteer, the Fort Lauderdale Housing Authority distributes children's books to needy families that may not be able to afford to purchase books on their own. To donate books, contact the Fort Lauderdale Housing Authority at (954) 525-6444 x111.

Please consider making a difference in the life of a child by helping him or her to read.

I have to go now, my little girl just called out "Daddy, will you read me a story?"

New City Attorney Takes Post

Harry A. Stewart, an attorney with 28 years of experience in counseling and representing Florida's governmental and private sector clients, will serve as the new City of Fort Lauderdale Attorney. While overseeing 10 attorneys and 11 support staff members, Stewart will direct the day-to-day operations of the department and its $2.3 million budget.

For the past 11 years, Stewart served in the Orlando law offices of Akerman, Senterfitt & Eidson, P.A. representing various cities and counties in such areas as land use, real estate development, eminent domain/condemnation, public finance and governmental affairs. Among the cities he represented were the City of Fort Lauderdale, Pompano Beach, St. Augustine and Tamarac. Among the counties he represented were Hillsborough, Orange and Seminole. Prior to that, Stewart spent 17 years representing governmental agencies as Assistant General Counsel and/or General Counsel for such counties as Broward, Volusia, Seminole and Orange.

Stewart is a native Floridian who was born in Daytona Beach and raised in Miami. He attended University of Florida, where he obtained a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration followed by a law degree. Later he served as an enlisted person in the Navy. Today, recreation time is spent either cruising, fishing or diving off of Fish Tales, his boat, or cruising on his Harley Davidson Soft Tail Deuce.

"I look forward to providing the outstanding service that this office has always provided," said Stewart. "Dennis Lyles (former City attorney) leaves large shoes to fill."

"Together As One, Better As One," presents a unique invitation to citizens. The purpose is to increase awareness of an respect for all the cultures and ethnicities that exist within our community.

The collaborative efforts among our staff, local organizations and businesses have made it possible to present a true mosaic of events and presentations throughout the month that are designed to showcase and celebrate various cultures.

Experience the music, customs, arts, films, literature and more during such events as Downtown Live! and SunTrust

We have joined with The National Conference for Community and Justice (NCCJ) in their mission "to fight bias, bigotry and racism, and to promote understanding and respect among all."

The NCCJ's Broward/South Palm Beach chapter is hosting its 1st Annual Walk As One Walk-A-Thon on Sunday, October 20. All funds raised will benefit the NCCJ's local youth and community leadership programs. The 3.1-mile Walk-A-Thon, presented by JM Family Enterprises, Inc. and The Herald -

Broward Edition, will begin at A1A and East Sunrise Boulevard and continue along Fort Lauderdale Beach.

Immediately after the walk-a-thon, there will be a multi-cultural street festival on the beach. The street festival entitled "Together As One - Better As One" is a celebration of the diversity of Broward County and will feature local bands, artists, vendors, social service agencies and cultural groups.

A detailed calendar of city-sponsored events is located on pages 8 and 9 of this issue of Focus On Fort Lauderdale.

FDOT Names Downtown Helistop 2002 Outstanding Airport Project Of The Year

The Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) has selected the recently completed Downtown Helistop as the 2002 Outstanding Airport Project of the Year.

The award was presented recently at the Florida Airport Managers Association Awards luncheon. To be considered for the award, an airport project must demonstrate exceptional professional skills and must represent a significant contribution to airport development, sustainability, efficiency, capacity and/or safety; and be a project funded under the FDOT Aviation Grants Program. In partnership with the State of Florida Department of Transportation, the City of Fort Lauderdale constructed a $3.6 million Downtown Helistop to meet the corporate community's growing transportation needs. This project was completed through a creative and cooperative funding plan which consisted of a series of state and federal grants. This facility is the only Public-Use Helistop in the State of Florida located in a Central Business District. The state-of-the-art facility is situated above the Central Park Mall Parking Garage in the heart of Fort Lauderdale's dynamic downtown.

City Hires Office of Professional Standards Director

The City of Fort Lauderdale has appointed Stephen Scott as Director of the Office of Professional Standards (OPS).

As Director of a newly created department, Scott and his staff will be responsible for implementing the City's Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) and Workforce Diversity programs; serve as the key liaison and resource for employees and supervisors to facilitate work place conflict resolution and intervention at the earliest possible stage; as well as the investigation, mediation and resolution of employee complaints.

Scott is no stranger to the City of Fort Lauderdale. He served as an Assistant City Attorney for almost two years. During that time, he provided legal counsel and representation on labor and employment matters, First Amendment and other constitutional litigation in both State and Federal Court, and was also responsible for drafting ordinances, resolutions, contracts and city policies in a variety of areas.

"As director, I consider the OPS position an opportunity to tackle difficult issues in new and creative ways," said Scott. "The combination of the more traditional EEO functions, with the ability to also deal with other work place issues that frequently lead to such complaints, offers the OPS Director the chance to create an office that is truly 'cutting edge.' The City Manager and members of his office have pledged their full support, and the support of City management, in these efforts."

With more than 13 years of experience, the last seven specializing in public sector labor and employment law, Scott has served as Assistant City Attorney for the City of Hialeah and most recently for the City of Miami. Scott is a graduate of the University of Florida with a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science. He obtained a law degree from George Washington University.

Citizens Urged To Change Smoke Alarm Batteries When Turning Back The Clock On October 27

A home fire is the one disaster that children are most likely to experience. It is the fifth leading unintentional cause of injury and death in the United States, behind motor vehicle crashes, falls, poisoning by solids or liquids, and drowning. Home fires also rank as the first cause of death for children under the age of 15 at home.

The City of Fort Lauderdale Fire-Rescue Department strongly encourages citizens to change the batteries in smoke detectors regularly. They cut your chances of dying in a home fire nearly in half. Since smoke alarms sense abnormal amounts of smoke or invisible combustion gases in the air, they can detect both smoldering and flaming fires. An easy way to remember to do so is to "Change Your Clock, Change Your Battery" when you change your clocks back to standard time on October 27. You will be making a lifesaving change in your household when you remember to change your smoke detector battery.

Most smoke alarms provide a test button you may use to test the unit periodically to assure proper operation. Smoke alarms should be tested monthly and be replaced every 10 years. Batteries normally last up to one year, and usually the smoke detector provides an audible indication when the batteries become weak. Ideally, you should have at least one smoke detector on each level of your home.

Team Up For Fire Prevention Week: October 6-12

The United States currently has one of the highest overall fire death rates of all industrialized countries. Residential fires are the most important cause of fire-related mortality. The best defense against fires is awareness and proper preparation.

Dedicated to raising public awareness about the dangers of fire and how to prevent it, the National Fire Prevention Association has collaborated with Fire-Rescue agencies nationwide in sponsoring Fire Prevention Week since 1925. This year's Fire Prevention Week, themed "Team Up for Fire Safety™", touches on three simple but essential safety lessons that everyone should know:

1- Installing and testing smoke alarms... The City of Fort Lauderdale Fire-Rescue Department urges citizens to install a smoke alarm on every level of your home. Install a smoke alarm in or near every sleeping area. Mount the smoke alarms high on ceilings or walls. Ceiling-mounted alarms should be installed at least four inches away from the nearest wall. Wall-mounted alarms should be installed four to 12 inches away from the ceiling. Finally, do not install smoke alarms near windows, outside doors, or ducts where drafts might interfere with operation.

2- Practicing home escape plans... Gather everyone in your household and draw a floor plan of your home, showing two ways out of each room, including windows. Don't forget to mark the location of each smoke alarm. Make sure that everyone understands the escape plan. If your home has security bars, make sure that they are equipped with quick-release mechanisms so that they can be opened immediately in an emergency.

3- Hunting for home hazards... Unattended cooking, space heating equipment and lit candles, as well as improper wiring are home hazards to correct. Liquids like gasoline, kerosene, and propane are highly flammable. Make sure to store these liquids outside the home in a properly ventilated shed or garage. Store them only in small quantities and in their original containers or in safety containers.

The idea is simple: team up with the people with whom you live, work, play, and worship so everyone is prepared to prevent, and if necessary, survive a home fire. For more information on Fire Prevention Week, fire safety tips and more, log on to www.nfpa.org. Also in honor of Fire Prevention Week...

The City of Fort Lauderdale Fire-Rescue Department, in conjunction with the Broward County School Board, is conducting an essay contest for all 5th graders in public schools located within the city limits. Each school will conduct the essay with one winner emerging from all schools. Contact your school for more information.

Status of Proposal For Additional Health Study At Wingate

The City of Fort Lauderdale is actively working with residents and Federal and State health experts in evaluating an additional health study proposed for communities near the Wingate Landfill, 1300 NW 31st Ave.

"Health concerns raised by some residents in neighborhoods near Wingate have not been ignored," said Greg Kisela. "Over the past 12 years, Federal, State and local health agencies have performed several studies in the areas surrounding the Wingate landfill to address the health concerns of residents. No scientific study performed to date shows a causal link between the Wingate landfill and health concerns expressed by some residents living near the site."

The City hired expert toxicologist Dr. Chris Teaf, to work with State and County health departments to evaluate a survey that may receive a $120,000 grant from the Federal Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR).

"The City of Fort Lauderdale supports additional studies if they use sound science and proven methodology," said Kisela. "If not, the studies will only create additional confusion in the community."

In order to avoid misleading the public, future studies must define a clear objective; require verification of information; and define study limitations in order to minimize the possibility of unreasonable expectations and misinterpretation of study results," Kisela said. For 25 years, between 1954 and 1978, the Wingate Road landfill and incinerator received hundreds of tons of waste each day from more than 1,400 companies and all Fort Lauderdale area residents. Everyone in the community made use of the City's disposal facility, in full compliance with existing regulations.

In early 2002, the City completed the EPA's remediation plan, which centered on a multi-layered capping system, the type of additional protection that EPA has used successfully at similar Superfund sites around the country.

The site will be monitored for 30 years. Previous EPA site monitoring results confirm that soil and water near the site do not pose any unusual risk to the Wingate community.

"Federal, State and local governments have done what they can to find the answers," said Kisela. "Every time another sound study takes place, the conclusions are the same: Wingate neighborhoods are safe."

Community Support Division Moves To New Location

The Police Department's Community Support Division (CSD) has moved to a new location.

CSD is now located at 533 NE 13th St., in the community of Middle River Terrace. The new location will continue to provide citizens with programs and services including the ability to file a police report, informational seminars and workshops, weekday bicycle registration from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and other crime prevention resources for the community. With the new location, CSD has expanded to accommodate Special Operations units including Marine, Traffic, SWAT, Dive, Motors, K-9 and Bomb.

The CSD phone number will remain the same, (954) 828-6400.

Initiated in 1995, the police department set out to develop a Community Support Division, formerly known as Community Policing Initiative, for the purpose of allowing the police and the community to work closely together in creative ways to solve the problems of crime, illicit drugs, fear of crime, physical and social disorder (from graffiti to addiction) and neighborhood decay.

Threatened neighborhoods have implemented problem-solving plans in conjunction with CSD to reduce crime and improve quality of life.

Additional information on CSD is available on Fort Lauderdale Online (www.ci.fort-lauderdale.fl.us/police).

Expertise In Explosive Matters

The lethal capability of bombs keep increasing, but so have the skills of trained personnel and the equipment used to prevent detonation.

If and when a potentially explosive situation is presented, the City of Fort Lauderdale Police Bomb Squad is armed with expertise and technology to render safe and dispose of explosives. In recent years, this unit's work has become increasingly visible due to national trends.

Ideally, a bomb can be dismantled with technical expertise and minimal human interaction. Special vehicles, technologically advanced tools such as remote controlled gadgets, and years of explosive expertise are first in line to take down a bomb.

"As one of only two Bomb Squad Units in Broward County, the Fort Lauderdale Bomb Squad has historically been the busiest specialty unit within the police department," said Captain Raul Diaz. "Since the tragedies of September 11, 2001, the Bomb Squad has been even busier keeping pace with new technologies and life-saving skills."

The five-member Fort Lauderdale

Bomb Squad are all Certified Bomb Technicians receiving their training at Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Alabama. The squad also has several dive certified technicians that can work underwater. Serving on the Bomb Squad is an additional assignment to their full time duties with the department. As a member of the team, the Squad is on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week. There are currently two bomb-sniffing dogs within the police department, with more to be added in the future.

Qualifying to serve on the Bomb Squad requires multi-disciplined training and years of police experience. Training sessions include cooperative drills with the Police Dive and SWAT (Special Weapons And Tactics) Teams, Fort Lauderdale's Fire-Rescue's Hazardous Materials Team, as well as training with other agencies including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the U.S. Coast Guard and the U.S. Navy. The bomb squad is part of a mutual aid agreement formed by several public safety agencies Florida's southern region. Within this agreement, bomb squad technicians and their equipment are available to other agencies, as the need arises.

Community Salute to Police and Fire

Recently, citizens and homeowner's associations organized a daylong event in honro of the City of Fort Lauderdale Police and Fire-Rescue personnel. The event drew hundreds of residents to Holiday Park for music, activities, demonstrations and special awards.

Promoting Smart And Safe Children

The statistics are staggering. In 2001, 840,279 adults and juveniles were reported missing to the police and entered into the Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Crime Information Center (NCIC). The FBI estimates that 85 to 90 percent of those missing persons are juveniles.

The safety of our children is a priority for the City of Fort Lauderdale Police Department, and with the recent widely publicized abductions, the Community Support Division is taking preventive action. Escape School is a free safety education program developed by Bob Stuber, a former police officer, who teaches children how to recognize and avoid a potential abduction while building self-confidence. In this course, children will learn survival techniques such as how to escape from the grip of an abductor, how to attract attention to the location where they are being held against their will, and how to get people involved in their rescue.

By the end of this free course, children will learn to trust their instincts and differentiate between "good" and "bad" strangers. The program is geared for children between the ages of 5 to 13. Currently, the Fort Lauderdale Police Department is the only law enforcement agency offering Escape School.

"The more informed a child is, the more prepared he or she is to take an active part in their own safety," said Major Robert Pusins. "We feel that the Fort Lauderdale Police Department can take a leadership role to educate children in their safety."

Escape School provides a one-hour instructional program taught to parents and children at various community locations. The program consists of video and role playing exercises with instructor and children. Escape School is a public service campaign nationally sponsored by neighborhood funeral homes and cemeteries affiliated with the Dignity Memorial Network, Inc. To register for the program, parents are urged to call CSD at (954) 828-6429.

A School Escape session is tentatively scheduled in October prior to Halloween. Parents are asked to register by contacting CSD at (954) 828-6429.

Stay Safe This Halloween With These Tips

Halloween provides children and parents an opportunity to have fun together. However, roughly four times as many children ages 5-14 are critically injured while trick or treating on Halloween evening compared with other evenings of the year. Fortunately, many Halloween-related injuries can be prevented.

The City of Fort Lauderdale Police Crime Prevention Unit urges parents to mind these safety tips:

- * Make certain an adult is present when children go door-to-door for treats.
- * Older children should trick or treat in groups and never eat any candy that is not inspected by a responsible adult.
- * Never enter a home. Always remain on the front porch or sidewalk while waiting for your treat.
- * Always walk on the sidewalk, not in the roadway. Carry a flashlight if walking after dark.
- * If a problem arises on the street, go to the nearest house and ask the homeowner to call your parents or police.

Pet Ordinance In Force, Increased Violations Reported

The City of Fort Lauderdale has received a large number of complaints from citizens who witness pet owners in violation of the pet ordinance and who do not curb their pets.

Code of Ordinance 6-4 prohibits pet owners from taking any pets or domesticated animals upon sandy portions of the public beaches in the City. The ordinance also prohibits pets on any sidewalk or public property lying adjacent to or part of the public beach and lying east of the centerline of State Road A-1-A (Fort Lauderdale Beach Boulevard and Seabreeze Boulevard) from N.E. 18th Street south to the northernmost intersection of Seabreeze Boulevard and Harbor Drive.

The ordinance also prohibits pets on any sidewalk or public property lying immediately west of the centerline of and abutting State Road A-1-A right-of-way from Sunrise Boulevard south to the southern-most section of State Road A-1-A and Seabreeze Boulevard. Pets are also prohibited on any public park or playground area in the City that is not designated specifically for pets.

Pet owners are required to curb their dogs on all other public right-of-way. Individuals witnessed violating this ordinance are subject to arrest or fine.

Commission Finalizes New District Map

After many City public meetings and community exchanges, the Fort Lauderdale City Commission has stamped its approval on a new district map.

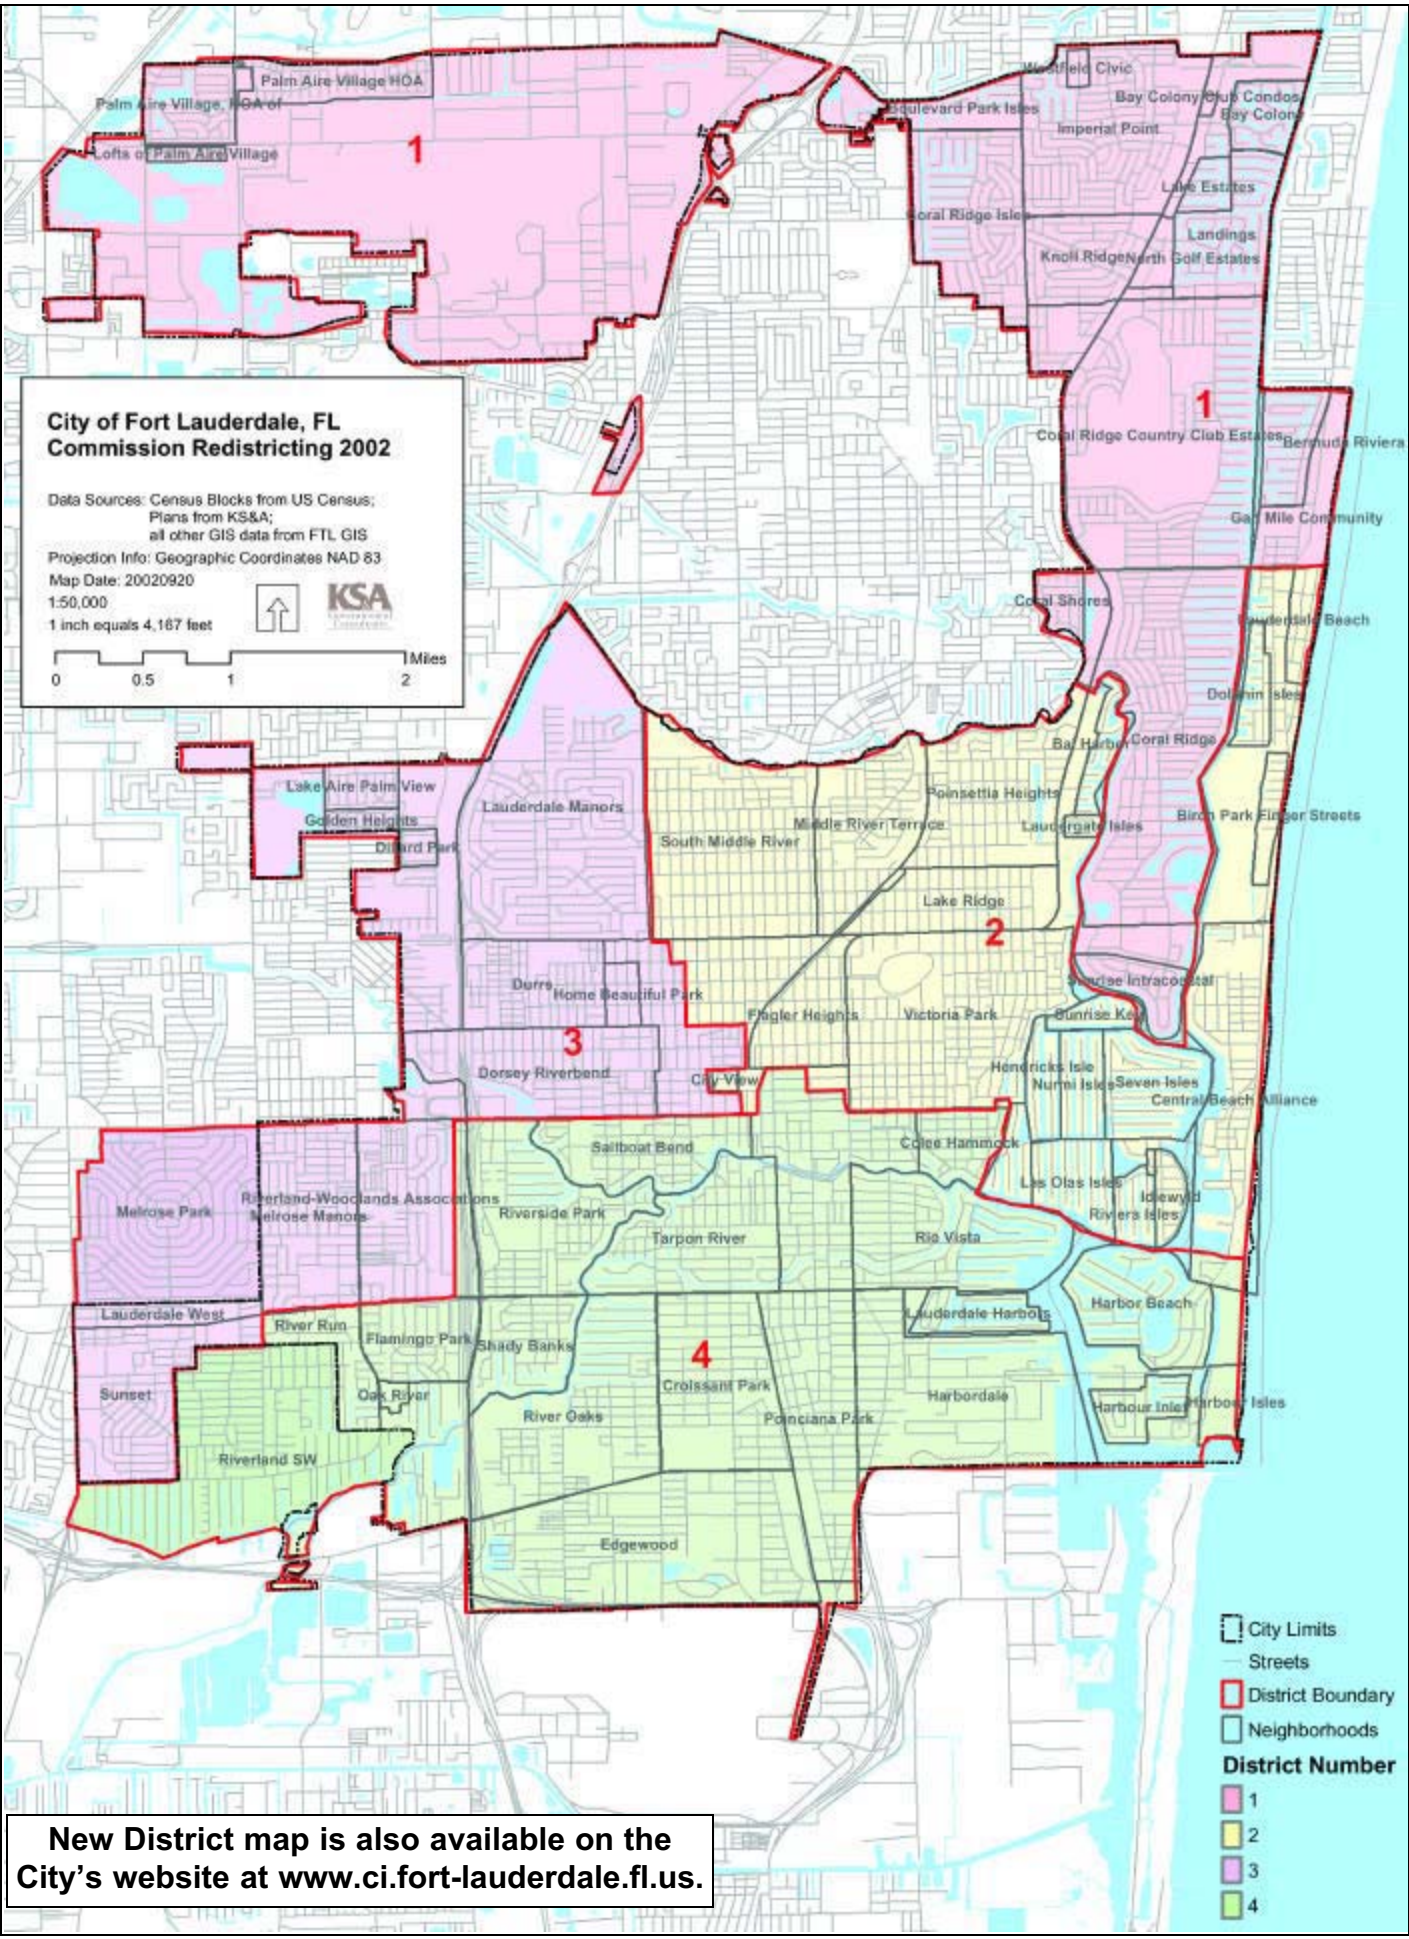

The newly aligned district boundaries will ensure that all citizens are represented fairly in the political process, and ensure that all districts are approximately equal in population.

The City of Fort Lauderdale population has reached 167,063 according to the 2002 Census data coupled with the addition of the newly annexed Melrose Park and Riverland Southwest neighborhoods. That number represents a 9.6 percent increase in residents from the 1990 Census.

Every 10 years, population increases reported by the U.S. Census Bureau require elected officials to carve the political landscape into new districts with a process known as redistricting. As a result of the process, the City Commission adopted Plan 1.3B.2 that appears to the right.

During the last year, community input was gathered during public meetings and workshops to assist the City and consultants in redistricting the City.

“This redistricting process has been a true grass roots effort,” said Paul Costanzo, Assistant Community Planning Manager. “The co-operation and dedication of residents, neighborhood groups and special interest groups have been an integral part in this process and a key to its success.”
